MR. YA'ACOV Sharettis JOURNEY Soviet Secret

Police, though an average of two Israeli diplomats have been dismissed from Iron Curtain countries in the past few years. Mr. Sharett is un-doubtedly the most con-spicuous, because of his father — a former Prime Minister — rather than for his own sake, Mr. Sha-pervades life in the Soviet Union, despite so much liberalization. There is lit-tle doubt here now that Mr. Sharett was "framed," in order to supply an ex-cuse for his expulsion. Here in Israel, diplomats are treated as human be-Here in israel, diplomats are treated as human beings, as I on g-st a y in g friendly tourists who are here to observe, "Let them observe," the common citizen says. We have nothing to hide. Our intentions are peaceful, our aims public. Members of foreign missions are welcome to travel up and down the country and see what they wish, unless it is secret military installations. In a way it is even more important that they are also welcome to tell us whatever they please about their own country. Here, missions send printed material to local papers and libraries — the Bulgarians distribute a French and English edition of a "Bulgaria" magazine, the Russia and China Said English edition of a "Bul-garia" magazine, the Czechs sought publicity for their publications on Nazi criminals, the Hungarians distribute booklets about Hungarian life and write polemics on Hungarian re-In Dispute over Atom WASHINGTON (Reuter), fugees; and even the Sov-iet Embassy sporadically sends pictures and printed

But of course it is a regular practice for Israeli diplomats to be dismissed from the Soviet-directed areas, and perhaps it is not so important what particular objections have been taken to Mr. Yaacov Sharett. The real reasons for their frequent departures are not far to seek.
The first is that Jews in the partures are not far to seek. The first is that Jews in the U.S.S.R. are hungry for information on Israel and on Jews in the rest of the world. "Exodus." for all that it is no classic, and has not been translated into Russian, is a collector's item on the book black market in Moscow, and so is Mr. Moshe Perlman's book on Elchmann.

Just as there is little regular information on Israel available in these countries, so the Elchmann trial has been blotted out there except for an occasional article that suggests that the sole purpose of the trial is to whitewash Globke. Mr. Sharett knows Israel, he knows Russian, and his name is a familiar one to Jews in many countries. That is reason enough for his dismissal Orecebers.

Soviets Snub Chinese US Said Ready Party Anniversary

Wednesday.

To da 3; Dr. Servatius, Elehmann's defence counsel, is to continue his sweep through the Balkans and southern Europe, touching on Elehmann's role in Greece, Bulgaria, Rumanis, Ibaly and Slovakia, before turning to Hungary. yesterday's "Pravda" placed, in the centre of its front page, a report on Soviet leaders leaving for Ulan Bator for the Ith anniversary of the Outer Mongolian Communist Party — an odd anniversary such as seldom calls for major commemoration.

On the same page "Pravda" noted the passage through Moscow of high-ranking Communist Party officials from Eastern Europe on their way to Mongolia. It any of them attended the Peking ceichrations, there was no publication of it here. All Soviet-bloc countries in East Europe were mentioned as naving representatives on the way to Mongolia, with the conspicuous exception of Albania, whose Use with the Soviet Union have been weakening as those with China tighten. While China was celebrating, two of the most obvious guests — the Prime Ministers of North Vietnam and North Korea — were on highly-publicized state visits to the Soviet Union. By all rules of Communist etiquette, neighbouring leaders Pham Van Dong and Kim Il Sung should have been present at the Peking affair.

The Soviet Union contented itself with telegraphed congratulations which, however, were prominently printed in "Pravda" on Saturday.

But yesterday's issue relegated the conclusion of Peking's celebrations to page six. Algerian Cities

Mr. Ben-Gurion has revealed something of what he promised the American President. We do not yet know all the truth, but what we know is enough to forewarn the people about the disaster that can be expected if the plan is carried out."

Haboker (Liberal), commenting on the "probable abolition" of the section in the American foreign aid law about the denial of Americar aid to countries carrying out discriminatory policies, writes: "The abolition of this section means very little in fact because the American Government has not been guided by it while it was part of the law." There may be no reason to attribute excessive importance to the State Department's support of the deletion, the paper continues, but "it cannot be denied that it leaves a bitter taste in the mouth." The paper goes on to speculate about whether this topic was discussed at the Ben-Gurion-Kenned of Mr. Eban's statement Friday about the statement Friday about the teachers' delegation to Ger-

Iraq's counter-complaint, against Britain, was filed just before the Council met.
Yesterday's meeting opened with Mr. Leopolde Benitss of Ecuasion, Chairman of the Council for July, asking the Council for July, asking the Council to adopt the day's agenda. He said Kuwait's complaint ranked first and Iraq's second.
When Mr. Benites invited comments, Mr. Valerian Zorin, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister and U.N. delegation chief, quickly got the foot. He protested that Britain's support for Kuwait's pleas "gives us doubt about the facts because it is at variance with the facts that we have received from the area."
However, he said, he would not oppose the Council session because of what he said was the seriousness of developments in the area and since Iraq's complaint about the "military threat' posed by Britain was going to be considered.

HAIFA. — The hearing of the Aharon Cohen espionage trial was opened to the public for one hour yesterday, while the District Attorney, Mr. Y, Bahaloul, cross-examined Cohen on his meetings with Prof. Martin Buber. Prof. Buber appeared as a character witness for Cohen on Friday.

Mr. Bahaloul closely questioned Cohen, putting it to him that he had not met Prof. Buber at all since 1951.
Cohen denied this, although no meeting with the Professor was noted in his voluminous and meticulously kept diaries, Cohen explained this by asying that he had marked only those meetings which had a practical bearing on his scientific work, whereas he met Prof. Buber for "spiritual benefit."

Cohen said that meetings with similar persons, such as Professors Simon and Goltein and Dr. Schereshevsky, had also not been noted, to which the Prosecution pointed out that there were no fewer than 17 references in Cohen's

I.E.C. Council Tells Strikers to Disband

ng Authority to Decide On Citrus Expansion Plans

TEL AVIV. — A new four-year plan for the citrus dustry is expected to be formulated at the meeting the Agricultural Planning Authority in Jerusalem day.

The principal issues up for discussion are the pros and c on s of further expanding the branch, beyond the present 340,000 dunams of young and fruit-bearing groves, or by only 20,000 dunams under the final 360,000 limit decided upon by the Ministerial Economic Committee last year. Licences for the planting of at least 40,000 more dunams have already been issued.

The anti-expansion oropenents are mainly from the private sector. They argue that it is becoming increasingly difficult to sell our produce and that the high price of the Jaffs orange can best be guaranteed by keeping it an exclusive fruit. Increased quantities, they fear, would bring prices plummeting down. The $70,000 dunams already accounted for could produce a potential 20m. case export crop by 1970, or more than double the last harvest, and substantially more than the reak crops of the mid-thirties.

Pro-Expansion Claims

forthwith.

The resulction was by a vote of $1-11 after a day-long discussion that was often atormy and acrimonious and accompanied by heckling. Warnings were issued that the "serious situation" in the company endangered the workers' representation on the management, which was instituted four years ago.

The resolution also called on the Histadrut and the Corporation's management to complete within a forthight the negotiations with the Works' Committee on all outstanding questions — i.e.,

Pro-Expansion Claims

The pro-expansion groups contend that the "excusive-price" angle is unreliable, pointing out that during the past season navels from Spain and North Africa consistently fetched higher prices than the early consignments of Jaffa and that only after the navels became full-ripe, and their suitability for storage deteriorated, did Jaffas gain over the navels.

An additional argument in favour of expansion is that it could help augment farmers incomes, thereby helping the entire economy.

The final potential of the country in terms of the total suitable area is estimated at 500,000 dunams. The Ministry of Agriculture is reported to be opposed to the planting of groves on areas of marginal suitability. Pro-Expansion Claims ally to be rewarded by some form of settlement in the Congo, quickly disappeared over the week-end. The hope seemed based on nothing more substantial than the bare word of a man whose sense of responsibility, as far as the U.N.'s experience with him is concerned, leaves much to be desired. Home from the hoosegow, Katanga's secessionist leader lost no time in giving full voice to the "second thoughta" he discreetly kept to himself while brooding in the Leopoldville lockup: that he would never voluntarily surrender Katanga's never voluntarily surrender Katanga's claim to independence.

I^N all fairness to Mr. Tshombe, it may be said that the circumstances in which his promise of "cooperation" was which his promise of "cooperation" was extracted were hardly such as to encumber him with a moral obligation to keep it. He was in fact lured to Coquinatville two months ago to attend a conference which was, according to agreed plan, called to work out details of the earlier Tananarive conference where the Congo leaders — with the exception of pro-Lumumbist Antolee Gizenga of Stanleyville Province — had decided to form a loose confederation which granted Katangs a great deal of autonomy. It turned out that in the autonomy. It turned out that in the meantime all but Tshombe, without his being appraised of the fact, had undergone a change of heart in favour of a federation with a far more authorita-tive central regime than that envisaged tive central regime than that envisaged at Tananarive. The Katanga leader's refusal to play according to the amended rules resulted in his arbitrary arrest and detention until last week, when it was announced he had become "convinced" the proposed new form of government was in the best interests of the Congolese people.

WHATEVER one's views of Mr. YY Tshombe's schismatic activities dur-ing his much-suffering country's year of chaotic independence, one could hard-ly expect him to invite the fate that overtook the "uncooperative" Patrice Lumumba, when he fell into the hands of the Katanga regime. What would be harder to understand, if this indeed tion in the Congo placed serious reli-ance on this palpably uncertain com-pact without having taken tangible measures to ensure its measures to ensure its implementation in case one purty to it should subsequently changed its mind once more. The agreement to which Tahombe subscribed in Leopoldville on June 25, provided an end to Katanga's secession, the restoration of the unity of the national army, 'educational system and conduct of foreign relations under control of the central government, the reconvening of parliament, and ultimately a uniform currency. Prodigal son Moise, while still in Leopoldville, added that he had signed an anti-Communist pact with the Congolese Army leader. Gen. Joseph Mobutu, and, praising the central government leaders laviably, was allowed to return to Elizabethylle.

There 24 hours later he launched a bitter attack on his Leopoldville "brothe a" of yesterday, for whom he now exstrumental in getting his release. He declared that Katanga would remain independent, scoffed at efforts to get parliament to reconvene and once again demanded that the U.N. get out.

As far as U.N. efforts to obtain a po-litical settlement are concerned, they are now back to where they were two months ago. What has emerged in-stead is a spilt among the leadership of the central Government, Tshombe's re-ference to his "anti-Communist" pact with Mobutu and his high praise for the army commander, set against the scorn with Mobutu and his high praise for the army commander, set against the scorn he poured on the remaining central Government leaders, seems to indicate Gen. Mobutu has his own views on cooperation with the Stanleyville regime, and make it doubtful that Gisenga will now be prepared to attend the parliamentary session which, called for the end of June, is already overdue.

The U.N. headquarters in Leopoldville, now under the unostentatious leadership of Dr. Sture Linner, has made some quiet progress. Incidents between U.N. personnel and Congolese troops have ceased, and many of the foreign mercenaries employed by Katanga have left the country. But one of the key provisions of the U.N. Security Council resolution, calling for the isolation of the Congolese army from politics, seems as Congolese army from politics, se
